

California's Interim Report on Remote Proceedings.

LOS ANGELES, August 17, 2021 - CourtCall has advanced the cause of remote participation since 1996 and remains the only company that provides fully supported audio and video services to courts, attorneys and the public. Court staff time and resources can be better spent on resolution of disputes and not directed to serve as the technology arm of unsupported mass-market platforms.

“When allowed to do so, CourtCall can demonstrate for every court that the funds spent on internal remote participation efforts can be more effectively and efficiently spent with CourtCall enabling a court to provide even greater access to justice,” said Bob Alvarado, CourtCall’s CEO. “We welcome the opportunity to work with every court to analyze the most effective way to maintain and expand remote access to courts,” Alvarado concluded.

CourtCall was established in 1995, with the desire to make remote court appearances simple, accessible and affordable for all parties, and has completed more than 6,000,000 remote appearances. CourtCall developed the Remote Appearance Platform, creating an organized and voluntary way for attorneys to appear for routine matters in Civil, Family, Criminal, Probate, Bankruptcy, Workers’ Compensation and other cases from their offices, homes or other convenient locations. Designed with reliable and user-friendly technologies, courts and remote participants experience seamless communication during cases, while benefiting from significant time and cost savings.
